

The actions taken by Sinclair Broadcasting, re: Stolen Honor, provide me with excellent material for my lectures on media conglomeration in my Introduction to Journalism class. Since I also discuss the cozy relationship between the FCC and the media conglomerates, I doubt the FCC will do anything that remotely serves the public interest in this case. But the FCC's inaction will also serve to illustrate my lectures. Thanks for doing nothing to serve the public interest in this egregious affront to the spirit of democracy.
